IV. Approval of the Agenda:
Renee Lorentzen, recreation and community services director, is working with the city manager’s office to update all city commissions the recent actions taken by the Milpitas city council relating to all city commissions. Informed that commission that the proposed name change from the telecommunications commission to the new science, technology, innovation commission was official. She added that agenda item 4 regarding the commission title change should be removed for discussion given that the city council has officially made its final decision on the matter.

Commissioner Bohan that by-laws of the commission need to be updated as well as a subcommittee be made to manage that process. Director Lorentzen added that a subcommittee should review and update the commission by-laws that the city council subcommittee will review and provide to the members. Commissioner Bohan added that the commission should have some input in the creation of the new by-laws. Director Lorentzen noted that should be part of the commission’s work plan for review and be submitted to the city council subcommittee. Vice chair D. Gupta added is the scope will be added to the by-laws.

Director Lorentzen noted the commission role to the city council is a general advisory topics and should be part of the by-laws and that should be part of the commission’s work plan development.

Chair Alcorn added that he went before the city council in September to advocate not changing the commission’s existing title. However, he noted that if changes are made to the title is should be “communications, technology and innovation commission” where communications is the main component of the technology area roll of the commission.

Council member Barbadiilo noted that assurances where made that the commissions were kept informed of the changes to the title of the group.
He added that he is willing to forward suggestions and further discussion items regarding the commission's work plan and direction that can be taken to the city council. Commissioner N. Gupta expressed his concern regarding that lack of communication to the commission on this matter. He apologized to the commission for the lack of information involving this matter and keeping everyone updated.
